Sometimes the ocean hands you an unexpected wave. Surfing was his life. Some will drown you. Others will keep you afloat. No cliché ending. Perfect in my books!!! (pun intended). It made me smile to hear a bit of pidgin. And great imagery and scenery as well. Appreciate the struggle with rehabilitation. It will have a place with the surfing fraternity. You succeeded in getting me to care about your characters. Just a thought. You portray him brilliantly and I feel for his plight. Oooh poor guy. All your characters are well observed and beautifully crafted. Very real fractured human beings. He was helpless. Devin was the ultimate screw up in the family. His constant need for cocaine nearly destroyed the family. People CAN recover and become renewed. Broken hearts can be mended; life does go on. I highly recommend!!! Fiction Spirituality Fantasy
