

New Mexico Gun-Down (The Trailsman #349) By Jon Sharpe ,

This one fits in the general outline of all these pulp western novels. The hero has to escort a nun and two wannabe nuns to an isolated cloister but a group of bandits have other ideas, That's about it as far as the story goes and there is nothing other than what you would expect, Less than 200 pages so it's a little effort to get through this one, I just needed a short break after finishing a 1080 page hardback. When a nun in Santa Fe begs Skye Fargo to guide two young women through the mountains to join her order he can't rightly refuse. But to do the Lord's work the Trailsman is going to have to face down the bandito Fermin Terreros-a man who could terrify the devil himself. Jon Sharpe Lord have mercy. New Mexico Gun-Down (The Trailsman #349)

