

The Black Death, The Great Mortality of 1348-1350: A Brief History with Documents (Bedford Series in History and Culture) By John Aberth The Black Death The Great Mortality of 1348-1350: A Brief History with Documents (Bedford Series in History and Culture) Take a deep dive into understanding The Black Plague from all angles from environmental to medical to religious as Black Death The Great Mortality of 1348 1350 shares documents from multiple countries in order to create a complete picture of the impact of this sad event in history: I'd say only the first third is for reading the rest is references: It did provide some information about dates and names but it mostly repeated itself and in a few spots I feel it contradicted itself. The Black Death The Great Mortality of 1348-1350: A Brief History with Documents (Bedford Series in History and Culture) Not exactly easy reading but it is a good book, The second half is a collection of primary and/or secondary sources for conducting research in the bubonic plague, The Black Death The Great Mortality of 1348-1350: A Brief History with Documents (Bedford Series in History and Culture).

[1]

This book is a summary. Okay for quick research material